RHETORICAL APPEALS

CLAIM & COUNTERCLAIM

Claim: The overall thesis the writer/speaker will argue for; the argument.

Counterclaim: A claim that negates or disagrees with the claim/thesis.
What is Persuasion?

Presenting the "Argument"

• The goal of argument is to win acceptance of one's ideas.
• Modern argumentation theory has roots in Greek and Roman thinking (Aristotle).
• We judge evidence, investigate carefully, state ideas accurately, and listen critically.

• Goal: to change others’ point of view or to move others to take action.
What is Rhetoric?

• Rhetoric (n) - the art of speaking or writing effectively (Webster's Definition).

  • According to Aristotle, rhetoric is "the ability, in each particular case, to see the available means of persuasion."

  • He described three main forms of rhetoric (rhetorical appeals or devices): Ethos, Pathos, and Logos
3 Rhetorical Appeals:

Ethos: Speaker’s credibility

Pathos: Appeal to audience’s emotions

Logos: Appeal to audience’s logic
Ethos: CREDIBILITY

Ethos: the speaker’s/author’s credibility or authority

- Greek for ‘character’ (‘ethics’ derives from ‘ethos’)
- The writer/speaker presents him or herself to the audience as a credible, trustworthy, honest, and ethical expert.
  - May mention degrees, experience, etc.
  - The writer/speaker can also reference others who are credible within the argument. For example, using a celebrity within a commercial.

EFFECT: The audience believes the speaker/writer
Using Ethos

• Establish your credibility:
  • Does the audience respect you?
  • Does the audience believe you are of strong, moral character?
  • Does the audience believe you are generally trustworthy?
  • Does the audience believe you are an authority on this topic?

Keep in mind that it isn’t enough for you to know that you are a credible source. Your audience must know this. Ethos is your level of credibility as perceived by your audience.
Ethos Example

In the following example, note how Nancy Mairs establishes her credibility and trustworthiness and authority to write about this subject by being honest. Mairs admits she is uncertain about her own motives and shows she understands the discomfort others’ have with this subject.
People—crippled or not—wince at the word “cripple,” as they do not at “handicapped” or “disabled.” Perhaps I want them to wince. I want them to see me as a tough customer, one to whom the fates/gods/viruses have not been kind, but who can face the brutal truth of her existence squarely. As a cripple, I swagger.

—Nancy Mairs, “On Being a Cripple”
Ethos: argument based on character and credibility.

The writer or speaker presents him or herself to the reader as a credible, trustworthy, honest, and ethical expert.
Pathos: EMOTION

• Pathos: appeals to the audience’s sense of emotion
  - Greek for ‘suffering’ or ‘experience’ (sympathy, empathy…feeling)
  - Uses emotional or motivational appeals through vivid diction, language, imagery, and details
  - To make the audience feel something about what is presented
    - Children, animals, illness, memories, etc.
    - “Tugs at your heart strings”
    - There is a potential for harm if the claim is not heeded

• EFFECT: Evokes/triggers an emotional response
Using Pathos

• Do your words evoke feelings of … love? … sympathy? … fear?
• Do your visuals evoke feelings of compassion? … envy?
• Does your characterization of the competition evoke feelings of hate? Contempt? Belonging?
• Emotional connection can be created in many ways by a speaker, perhaps most notably by anecdotes (brief stories), but also with analogies, similes, and metaphors.
• It is often to link an aspect of the primary message with a triggered, common emotional response from the audience.
Pathos Example

What is the photographer’s claim?

This appeals to the which emotion(s)? How?
Pathos Example

• How does this advertisement appeal to emotion? Why?
In the following example from a speech by Winston Churchill, note the use of collective “we,” and of anaphora (repetition of a word or group of words at the beginning of items in a series). This repetition emphasizes the point and expresses passion and emotion. Moreover, the repetition affects the audience emotionally and evokes a sense of belonging and responsibility as they are part of the whole “we.”
We shall not flag or fail. We shall go on to the end. We shall fight in France, we shall fight on the seas and oceans, we shall fight with growing confidence and growing strength in the air, we shall defend our island, whatever the cost may be, we shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills. We shall never surrender.

—Winston Churchill, speech to the House of Commons, June 4, 1940
Pathos: argument based on emotions

Using pathos means appealing to readers’ feelings.
Logos: LOGIC

Logos: appeals to audience’s sense of logic and reason.

• Greek for ‘word’ (‘logic’ derives from ‘logos’)
• Using logos means appealing to the readers’ sense of what is logical.
• Very straightforward, and not “fluff”. It has a very scientific, factual approach. Often includes facts, statistics, and “if-then” analogies/reasoning.

EFFECT: Evokes a cognitive, rational response
Using Logos

• Does your message make sense?
• Is your message based on facts, statistics, and evidence? Do you avoid opinions?
• Will your call-to-action lead to the desired outcome that you promise?
Claim: Students should be allowed to use cell phones during school hours.

Logos Example

In the following example, note how Ian Ayres uses evidence from experience (her work environment, Delta Airlines, the University of Chicago). This evidence establishes the precedent that Ayres uses to compare to the current situation that she argues should be changed.
We don’t have single-sex toilets at home, and we don’t need them at the office. Then there’s also the small question of efficiency. I see my male colleagues waiting in line to use the men’s room, when the women’s toilet is unoccupied. Which is precisely why Delta Airlines doesn’t label those two bathrooms at the back of the plane as being solely for men and women. It just wouldn’t fly.
Today, one in 10 men in the NBA is at least seven feet tall, but a seven-foot-tall man is incredibly rare in the general population -- so rare that if you know an American man between the ages of 20 and 40 who is at least seven feet tall, there's a 17 percent chance he's in the NBA right now. That is, find six honest seven footers, one is in the NBA right now.

- David Epstein, author of The Sports Gene
REVIEW

Logos = argument based on facts, evidence, and reason

Using logos means appealing to the readers’ sense of what is logical.
Should persuasive writing use more than one rhetorical appeal?

Yes! The more appeals used, the more likely the reader will connect with, believe, and act on the claim.

"I will end this war in Iraq responsibly, and finish the fight against al Qaeda and the Taliban in Afghanistan. I will rebuild our military to meet future conflicts. But I will also renew the tough, direct diplomacy that can prevent Iran from obtaining nuclear weapons and curb Russian aggression. I will build new partnerships to defeat the threats of the 21st century: terrorism and nuclear proliferation; poverty and genocide; climate change and disease. And I will restore our moral standing, so that America is once again that last, best hope for all who are called to the cause of freedom, who long for lives of peace, and who yearn for a better future."

It could be Pathos though!

"However, although private final demand, output, and employment have indeed been growing for more than a year, the pace of that growth recently appears somewhat less vigorous than we expected. Notably, since stabilizing in mid-2009, real household spending in the United States has grown in the range of 1 to 2 percent at annual rates, a relatively modest pace. Households' caution is understandable. Importantly, the painfully slow recovery in the labor market has restrained growth in labor income, raised uncertainty about job security and prospects, and dampened confidence. Also, although consumer credit shows some signs of thawing, responses to our Senior Loan Officer Opinion Survey on Bank Lending Practices suggest that lending standards to households generally remain tight."

• "I am not unmindful that some of you have come here out of great trials and tribulations. Some of you have come fresh from narrow jail cells. And some of you have come from areas where your quest -- quest for freedom left you battered by the storms of persecution and staggered by the winds of police brutality. You have been the veterans of creative suffering. Continue to work with the faith that unearned suffering is redemptive. Go back to Mississippi, go back to Alabama, go back to South Carolina, go back to Georgia, go back to Louisiana, go back to the slums and ghettos of our northern cities, knowing that somehow this situation can and will be changed."

Argument depends King’s appeal to his audience pain and suffering, but also his inspiration at the end that things will get better.

ACME is currently working towards a patent on our process. Our scientists are exploring ways to use the process in cars, houses, airplanes, and almost anything else that needs power. ACME batteries will be refitted with small dihydro-cesium reactors. Once the entire world is powered by ACME's generators, we can all relax and enjoy a much easier life.

The report concerned a teenager who had been shot because he had angered a group of his male peers. This act of violence caused me to recapture a memory from my own adolescence because of an instructive parallel in my own life with this boy who had been shot. When I was a teenager some thirty-five years ago in the New York metropolitan area, I wrote a regular column for my high school newspaper. One week, I wrote a column in which I made fun of the fraternities in my high school. As a result, I elicited the anger of some of the most aggressive teenagers in my high school. A couple of nights later, a car pulled up in front of my house, and the angry teenagers in the car dumped garbage on the lawn of my house and shot up the place.
